Business Opportunities

The Airdrie – Bathgate Rail Link will help re-energise the local economy, allowing people to find work and commute more easily and comfortably. By opening up employment opportunities in Central Scotland the new line will breathe life into currently detached areas.

Did you know?

There are around 4,500 businesses in West Lothian and 5,500 businesses in North Lanarkshire. The new rail link will help provide the energy and manpower to keep these businesses competitive.

How will the rail link help my business?

The rail link will improve access to a wider and more diverse labour force. People will be able to commute from a larger catchment area more comfortably. Increased public transport along the new rail link will go a long way towards resolving the difficulty many small businesses have with recruitment.

How will the new rail link affect employment opportunities?

For the first time in over fifty years, residents of Drumgelloch, Caldercruix, Armadale and Bathgate as well as those living in villages in between will be able to commute by train to Edinburgh or Glasgow with a frequent service running to both major cities.

All in all, the Airdrie – Bathgate Rail Link supports the Government's ambitions for growing Central Scotland.
